

Methodological and Theoretical Bases of Intergeneration Relations Problem

M.I. Postnikova

Pomorsk State University named after M.V. Lomonosov, Arkhangelsk

Key words and phrases: psychology of intergenerational relations; intersubjective experience; generative attitude; intergeneration relationships patrimonial integrity.

Abstract: The paper studies the problems of methodology and theory of intergeneration attitudes. As the initial methodological basis of this problem Platon's idea about the patrimonial person is designated as well as the views of Russian philosophers about Patrimonial integrity as the linker between the person and the society. The philosophers M. Heidegger's and E. Husserl's idea of intersubjective experience which is treated as the attitude between old and new generations, between the adult and the child or as generative attitude is analyzed.