

Problems of Enterprises' Adaptation to Innovative Type of Development

V.V. Bykovsky, E.V. Bykovskaya, A.A. Senichkin

Tambov State Technical University, Tambov

Key words and phrases: business; business plan; economy type; innovative processes; model of development;

Abstract: The paper studies the main problems of innovative processes intensification at the company level. The approaches to this process management are analyzed.

The need for innovative processes coordination both at the level of enterprises and the level of management bodies is justified.

The necessity of application of the corresponding programs in the course of the innovative processes coordination at different levels is characterized.