

Patterns of Professional Communication Culture Development of Future Social Workers in University

N.V. Kurilovich

Tambov State University named after G.R. Derzhavin, Tambov

Key words and phrases: acmeological invariants; communicative activity; patterns; personal professional development; system of individual professional standards.

Abstract: The paper identifies the patterns of professional communication culture development of future social workers, which is manifested in the aspects of personality development and organization of the educational process of a social worker's training.