Development of Automated System for Network Load Balancing

A.Yu. Chichkanov, V.E. Podolsky

Tambov State Technical University, Tambov

Abstract: This article describes the software system to improve effective use of available resources. The authors proposed an algorithm of load balancing, which provides increased productivity in data processing. This greatly enhances the mobility of end terminals and reduces the cost of data processing.