
The Essence and Specificity of Developing Environmental Culture in Civil Servants through Recreational and Health Improving Technologies

I.S. Ivanov

Tambov State Technical University, Tambov

Key words and phrases: development; ecology; environment; environmental culture; levels; methods; municipal service; recreation; recreational and health improving technologies.

Abstract: The paper examines the essence and specificity of the socio-cultural characteristics of developing environmental culture of civil servants. The levels of recreational and health improving activities to develop environmental culture of civil servants have been shown. The methods of recreational and health improving activities have been described; their application contributes to the development of environmental culture of civil servants.

© И.С. Иванов, 2012