

Practice-Oriented English Training to Develop College Learners' Professional Communicative Competence

M. N. Mosina

Moscow Branch of St. Petersburg Institute of Foreign Economic Relations, Economics and Law, Moscow

Keywords: communicative competence; means of professional communication; practice-oriented project.

Abstract: The article is devoted to the practice-oriented method of teaching English in colleges. This approach involves training and teaching foreign languages based on the active professional activity and career of students and their personal interest in the acquisition of knowledge. Using practice-oriented method of learning English contributes to development of communication skills in professional environment and raising students' interest in professional work.