

System Model of Assessment and Quality Improvement of Engineering Products

R. V. Zharikov

Tambov State Technical University, Tambov

Keywords: adaptation; express method; system model; total quality management.

Abstract: The paper describes an express method for assessing the quality of engineering products, taking into account the index of purpose, price and product differentiation. The author proposes a system model of product quality management, which includes the creation of new products (technology), management and motivation of personnel, management tools, production, sales, and service.