

The Analysis of the Local Investment Market of the Tambov Region in the Context of Attracting Household Savings

I. N. Biryukov

Tambov State Technical University, Tambov, Russia

Keywords: local investment market; investment market infrastructure; household savings; individual investors; regional economic system.

Abstract: The article examines the socio-economic position of the Tambov region and shows how its main indicators have been developed over the past few years. The author analyzes the main aspects influencing the process of attracting household savings to the regional investment market such as: the amount of savings, the degree of financial infrastructure development, the local regulatory features of investment practice, etc. The data on the investment climate of the Tambov region are based on the published rankings drawn up by specialized agencies.