Keywords: Federal Target Program; industrial companies of Russia; R&D; government contract; non-budgetary funds; government funding.

Abstract: The genesis of Federal target programs (FTP) with regard to contracts with Russian industrial companies is exemplified by R&D contests funded by the government. Using the example of a specialized industrial company, whose property is state-run, available methods of technological innovation are analyzed. The article deals with the specific methodological aspects of using non-budgetary funding when implementing contracts by industrial companies. Their influence (characteristics) on the attractiveness of participation in tenders (auctions, options, etc.) for enterprises of Russian industry is evaluated.
