

Monitoring of Socio-Economic Threats at the Regional Level

T. A. Bondarskaya, O. V. Bondarskaya

Tambov State Technical University, Tambov, Russia

Keywords: national security; socio-economic policy; regional economy; economic security.

Abstract: One of the key elements of the national security of the territory is its socio-economic component, which implies the achievement of its level of protection from external and internal factors of influence. The slowdown in global economic growth today leads to a change in the global economic situation, as well as questions about the national security of the state. Particular importance is given to indicators of socio-economic security at the regional level, since the safety of entities is determined by the state of security of the entire state. The main risks of the socio-economic security of the region are considered: demographic indicators; health care level; population income level; investment climate of the territory; crime rate, etc. The basic concepts and categories of socio-economic security of the region are considered on the example of the Tambov region and based on existing indicators; the analysis of the socio-economic development of the territory for a certain period of development is presented.