Memorable Places of V. I. Vernadsky: to the History of the Construction of the Building of the Tambov Provincial Zemstvo Council and the Pedagogical Aspects of its Study by Students of an Environmental Profile (1865 – 1902)

V. E. Bredikhin, I. V. Dvukhzhilova, A. V. Kozachek

Tambov State Technical University, Tambov, Russia

Keywords: zemstvo self-government; Tambov Provincial Zemstvo Board; V. I. Vernadsky; Ladan manor; capital construction; historical memory; corporate pedagogy; students studying in the direction of Ecology.

Abstract: The paper focuses on pedagogical aspects of studying memorable places of life and work of V. I. Vernadsky by environmental students. The administrative building of the Tambov State Technical University was considered as an object of corporate pedagogy, which is also an object of historical memory, where the Tambov Provincial Zemstvo Administration was located up to 1918, and where the outstanding scientist-bio-geochemist, academician V. I. Vernadsky carried out the social and political activities. The paper describes the background of the construction of the administrative building of the Tambov State Technical University as an architectural monument associated with socio-political activities of the outstanding scientist bio-geochemist, academician V. I. Vernadsky on the territory of the Tambov Region. The period from the moment of the formation of zemstvo institutions in the Tambov province to the first major reconstruction of the estate territory of the provincial zemstvo council is under study. The reasons and circumstances of the placement of the apparatus of the provincial council within the manor territory of the last building of the Tambov provincial Zemstvo are considered. The location and nature of capital facilities on the territory of the provincial council in the period preceding the construction of the last building of the Tambov Provincial Zemstvo were determined. The reasons and features of the reconstruction of capital facilities on the territory of the estate of the provincial zemstvo in the early 1900s were clarified. The direct participation is shown of V. I. Vernadsky as a member of the reporting commission in the acquisition by the provincial zemstvo of a plot of land with buildings that served as the basis for the temporary main building of the technical university.